Video Spokesperson

January 27, 2010

Its time to add Video to your Website. Whether you are using the latest technology of a transparent video of a walk on actor (Video Spokesperson) or a framed video presentation, it is now standard to have video. Not only can it benefit you by giving your visitors more focus and clarity, but also in SEO.

If you have been thinking about doing this, then now is the time. Don't let your competitors pull ahead of you. They are either already doing it or are planning on it just like you. A Live Spokesperson can identify why it is so important to click on a specific link on your site. They give emphasis to the most important parts of your website and clarify questions that your visitors may have.

And even more interesting is what it could potentially do for your SEO. For a couple years some "not-so-smart" internet trolls have been spreading a rumor that video hurts SEO. However, as you will notice by simply looking at search engine results (especially Google) video DOES NOT HURT at all!!! We have video at our site and it has never stopped us from being in the top ten. In fact, many of our own customers have remarked at how their websites jumped into the top ten after adding one of our video spokespeople.

Infact, a recent article in Entrepreneur Magazine says that video is 50 times more likely to appear in the top ten of a search on Google. So, who knows maybe this is that kick that you need to not only add life to your website for bump your website up the search engine ladder.

Give us a call and we can help you figure it all out. 801-748-2281

Video Spokesperson

September 1, 2009

Creating a video spokesperson for you website is easy with the help of TalkingHeads.com. There is no need to wait any longer to add your website video spokesperson. The technology is here and easy to do. TalkingHeads.com will take you through step by easy step and get your video produced and ready to go. You can place this virtual spokesperson anywhere you want.

Deciding where to place your video spokesperson is up to you. Most sites choose to place it in the bottom right corner of the screen and stay there while the page scrolls up and down so that you see it no matter where you go on the page. Up or Down. This placement of your video spokesperson make a lot of sense because of the trained method that we english readers are used to moving our eyes. They end up in the bottom right. However, there will be times when a different location will make more sense.

Follow

For example if you are talking about a specific item on your website and want the video spokesperson to refer directly to that item. It would make sense to place him/her right next to that item. Sometimes you will want to place it in the top left to be one of the first places that the eyes go as the visitor scans the page.

Another determining factor is whether you are using a full body or half body video spokesperson. If you are using a half body, it is important that is be place either at the very bottom of the screen or directly above some type of dividing line or section. That way it doesn't look like you have half a body just floating in mid air. That could be scary!!!

If you have other questions regarding placement or size of the video, don't hesitate to give TalkingHeads.com a call at 801-748-2281.

Video Spokesperson

April 20, 2009

How to add a video spokesperson to your website:

Adding a video spokesperson to your website is simple and easy. First shoot your actor on a green or blue screen. Second key out the background and smooth the edges and hair. Third transforms into a Flash video with transparent alpha channel. Fourth, create a flash player to display the FLV on your website. Fifth, write the coding to display your video spokesperson in the correct position and location on your website. If I have lost you, by now or you don't want to spend the thousands of dollars it takes to do that, then give WebsiteTalkingHeads.com at call.

In fact, you shouldn't be focusing on that anyway. The questions you should be asking are:

- What should my video spokesperson say?
- What parts of my website should I point out?
- If I was showing my best friend the site, what would I do?
- Should I use a male or female video spokesperson?
- What clothing represents my company best?
- How many other pages should my video spokesperson be on?

Website Talking Heads can assist you in understanding how to get the very most out of your video spokesperson. And don't worry about the technical side. We have worked with thousands of videos and have plenty of experience in this area.

So, why keep waiting and thinking about it. How many customers are you losing by not having a video spokesperson on your site. We can help you get it going quickly and start reaping the benefits as soon as possible.

Online Spokesperson

April 20, 2009

How to add an online spokesperson to your website.

An online video spokesperson can be added to most websites easily. The video is in a format called Flash Video or FLV. It is controlled by a player or SWF. There is then code that is used to place it on a separate top layer over the website. wmode must be changes to transparent. Wow, that just seemed complicated.....

Really that is not something that you need to worry about. WebsiteTalkingHeads can help you with the technical side. What you want to focus on is how you want that spokesperson to influence your website visitors.

- Which pages should you put a spokesperson on?
- How long should the online virtual spokesperson talk?
- Do you want a male or female spokesperson?
- What should your online spokesperson tell your visitors to do?
- Should you add graphic pop ups during the video?

If you can answer these questions you have beat the competition. Don't worry about the technical side, focus on the creative side. And if you need help with that, then ask WebsiteTalkingHeads.com

Online spokesperson videos can be a great add on to your website. So hopefully you can spend you time focusing on the important part, not on the technical side. Be creative, but remember the intention of the online video spokesperson is to increase sales not just entertain your visitors. And done right, it can easily accomplish that feat.

Live Spokesperson

March 6, 2009

Wow. A Live Spokesperson. How things have changed in the last 2 years. We have reached a point in the video spokesperson world where it seems everyone wants one. Website owners are getting it. They understand how important it is to do more with their site that just hope people know what to do.

A recent survey stated that over 25% of website companies plan on adding video to their site. A live spokesperson will help these sites come to life. We've been making that happen now for longer than almost anyone on the internet. We have become arguably the largest producer of live spokesperson videos than anyone else on the Internet.

One of the greatest compliments is when your competition begins to copy your method of business and advertising. Why are some of the supposed "biggest companies" copying us? Because we've been getting it right. Customers are smart. You can't make them pay ridiculous amounts for something of equal quality for less.

Now, don't get me wrong, quality is very important. Relationship is very important too. Customers want to work with an established company that understands their needs. They are tired of companies that say the price is one thing but forget to tell you that there are other fees involved to make video work.

Hey, we welcome the competition, its healthy, its good, and it makes us all better. We feel that our competitors have finally listened to the customers and have made some changes. We see them copy us and try to be more like us so that they can meet the needs better. We like this. It keeps us on our toes, finding new ways to better serve them.

So, keep coming back. Over the next couple weeks we are launching TWO ground-breaking products that will knock your socks off!!!!

Web Video Spokesperson

December 20, 2008

As I review the different post I have written, I wonder what more can be said. Sometimes its important to just go back to the basics. Almost two years ago when we first started helping companies add a live spokesperson to their website, it was so unique and different that the gimmick itself was all that was necessary. Some even called it an annoying fad. Many said it would never catch on.

Its funny that many of those critics are now changing their minds. Many are beginning to see that a spokesperson is not only interesting and eye catching, but helpful to the entire web experience. Yeah, well believe it or not some people thought the Internet wouldn't catch on either.

So, if you are looking for a way to make you website perform better, throw on a live spokesperson and see the immediate difference. There arent many things you can add to your website that can immediately produce results. No waiting for months for SEO to kick in. It starts the moment your video spokesperson is installed.

Sitepal vs Real Website Spokesperson

November 23, 2008

Sitepal has proven to be a powerful additive to website marketing, but, how does it compare to Real Website Spokesperson? Sitepal provides a unique solution to guiding visitors to key areas of websites. You can program your sitepal to say what you wish. The problem is no matter how you slice it, a sitepal is always fake. And although we are intrigued by cartoons, a real human is always more interesting and effective for 5 reasons.

1. Sitepal charges you per visit so if you get popular you have to pay more.
2. Sitepal voices. A computer voice is annoying and your voice may not be professional
3. Sitepal is restrictive in size and location. A real Website Spokesperson can be placed on top of text or images so no rearranging of your design is necessary
4. Sitepal is the old and A Real Website Spokesperson is new and hip. Plus, some independent studies show that a real website spokesperson produces results nearly triple that of a Sitepal.
5. Sitepal only works if the Sitepal servers are working. A spokesperson can operate off of your own server

If you have been trying to make the decision between a sitepal or a real website spokesperson, the choice is simple. A real website spokesperson is the way to go. Give us a call and get started today.

Virtual Spokesperson – Website Spokesperson

November 13, 2008

A Virtual Spokesperson is now becoming a regular thing in today's website landscape. Virtual means that the spokesperson of course isn't live on the site but a video image of a spokesperson. But, the effects of a virtual spokesperson are most definitely tangible. Your virtual spokesperson can boost ROI practically the same day it is installed.

So, why would anyone hesitate to add a virtual spokesperson? That's what I would like to address today. Why? Some "web gurus" will tell you that no one wants to see a video automatically playing when they enter a site. These are usually the same people that say that long sales letters don't work cause no one wants to read them. Any one with any true marketing experience who has actually look at the analytics knows that long sales letters work! Anyone who has tried a virtual spokesperson also knows the same, and yet the people ("experts") make statements without any working knowledge. Before you listen to anyone who thinks it might not be a good idea. Find out if they have ever used a virtual spokesperson. Chances are they have not.

A person on a website does amazing things for the visitor. It helps them to view the site differently. To the visitor the site is obviously more credible instantly, and not just some fly by night operation. It is alive. A live person comes out and greets them. People love looking at a person on a website. A live actor on a website creates interest and curiosity.

Its also not as complicated as you would think. The ordering process is simple a fast. Just give Website Talking Heads the script and let them do the rest. They will produce your virtual spokesperson video and install it on your website faster than you thought possible.

Call Website Talking Heads today and get your going now. There is no need to hold off. This is not rocket science, its common sense. So, use it and get started now.

Virtual Spokesperson – Flash, Website, Video, Internet and Commercials

October 21, 2008

A Virtual Spokesperson could be the key to increased sales on your website. Whether your website offers products, services or information, a Virtual Spokesperson can give you that upper edge. As your website opens, the virtual spokesperson welcomes visitors to the site and gives your website visitors directions as to what to do next.

This Virtual spokesperson is such an unfair advantage to your competitors. Imagine their websites, they just sit there alone and stale like a Ghost Town. Visitors only visit them to see a relic of the past. Its almost like visiting a museum. Your website spokesperson has vibrance and life. Literally. life!

What a huge advantage. You now have the ability to really showcase your product and services in a way that only bigtime websites could have done. In fact, what you are doing with your virtual spokesperson is more like what bigtime companies have been doing for years. They have used spokespeople in live events, commercials, radio, and pictures.

The big companies know that a human has influence. People love hearing something from someone else. A virtual spokesperson is that human that connectio0n that your website is missing. Every second that your website sits empty is another day your visitors walk through a ghost town looking at the relics of the past.

Bring your website up to date today with a virtual spokesperson by calling WebsiteTalkingHeads.com at 801-748-2281
